Great Wisconsin Birding & Nature Trail ~ Central Sands Prairie Region ~ Adams County Segment

The WI DNR Endangered Resource Program developed bird/nature viewing guides, dividing the state into regions that are unique to the area birds. Adams County is in the Central Sands Prairie region, & includes 4 natural/wildlife areas.

- 1 Colburn State Wildlife Area: You can see herons & egrets in the marshes along Carter & Big Dry Creeks, located in the 5,000 acres of this area. Many nesting songbird species & numerous woodpeckers live in the wooded areas. Bald eagles can be seen hunting over Colburn, just a few miles east of the WI River. Deer, badgers, woodchucks, mink, fox & coyotes roam freely on the property. Rustic Road R-50 takes you around/through the property. To get here from Friendship, drive north on Hwy 13 for 10 mi. to Cty C, then east on C, 6 mi. to the property. Common species: Sandhill Cranes, Ruffed Grouse & American Black Duck. Rare species: Sedge Wren, Veery & Pileated Woodpecker.
- 2 Dells of the Wisconsin River State Natural Area: Birding is abundant along the gorge, cliffs, canyons & rock formations in the 1,300 acres here. The forest diversity draws in many different species of birds. To get here from WI Dells, go east .6 mi. on Hwy 13, then north 1.7 mi. on River Road to a parking area west of the road. A hiking trail leads to the river. Another parking area is located 1.9 mi. farther north along River Road. The rock formations are best seen by the water. A boat landing is located on River Road, .5 mi. north of Hwy 13. Common species: Northern Rough-winged Swallow, Bank Swallow, Cliff Swallow & Barn Swallow. Rare species: Yellow Warbler, Prothonotary Warbler & Northern Waterthrush.
- 3 Quincy Bluff & Wetlands State Natural Area: This is 5,102 acre natural area in the sandy bed of former Glacial Lake Wisconsin. Quincy Bluff & Rattlesnake Mound are both sandstone mesas that border this vast wetland complex. Quincy Bluff looms 200 ft. above the wetland. Grassland sparrows are drawn to the forested areas. Turkey Vultures & Bald Eagles soar overhead, while Red-tailed Hawks perch on tree limbs along woodland edges. To get here from the intersection of Hwy 13 & Cty H, go west 2.4 mi. on Cty H, then north .4 mi. on 16th Ave, then west .5 mi. on Evergreen Ave., then north 2.4 mi. on 16th Dr. to a parking area east of the road. Common species: Willow Flycatcher, Great Blue Heron & Common Raven. Rare species: Blue-headed Vireo, Red-headed Woodpecker, Gray Jay & Golden-crowned Kinglet.
- 4 Roche-a-Cri State Park & Roche-a-Cri Mound State Natural Area: This 605 acre state park is dominated by a 300 ft. rocky butte. Climbing to the top of the mound on the 303-step staircase, gives you a bird's-eye view of the flat Central Sands plain. Turkey Vultures use the high mound as a roost site. To get here from Friendship, go north on Hwy 13 two mi. to the park entrance. State Park fees apply. Common species: Turkey Vultures & Bald Eagles. Rare species: Common Raven, Winter Wren & Blue-gray Gnatcatcher.

Dyracuse Mound Ski Jumping

Are you interested in learning how to ski jump? If so, check out the Tri-Norse Ski Club ski jumping at Dyracuse Mound, in the Town of Rome.

This sport has been taking place here for the past 85 years. In 1928, Ingvar and Ruth Arneson discovered Dyracuse Mound, along with its possibilities as a ski jump. The first tournament was held in 1932, after which the club became affiliated with the Central US Ski Association.

Over the years, jumps of 5, 10 & 22 meters have been built to the west of the 55 meter slide & are used in developing ski jumpers as they work their way to the bigger slide.

The Tri-Norse Ski Club coaches, instructs & has equipment readily available. They say that no one is too young or too old to learn this fascinating sport.

Tri-Norse makes certain that the safety of the skier is the main concern in preparing the hills for winter.

If you would like more information, check out their website at trinorse.com, or you can contact the Town of Rome @ 715-325-8013.

The "New" Meth Labs

Methamphetamine users aren't the only people poisoned by this dangerous operation. Meth labs of the past required a large amount of chemicals, cookware, and room enough to set up the lab. Now, making meth using the "one pot" method yields enough for one or two doses, and is accomplished by pouring ingredients into a plastic soda bottle and shaking. Bottles are then easily disposed of by tossing them out the car window creating an environmental and health hazard.

The chemical mixture in a "one pot" container could burst into flames when exposed to oxygen or water, making it extremely dangerous for citizens doing roadside clean up. The bottle could burst open, splashing a dangerous chemical mix over the person holding the bottle, or others nearby. This chemical cocktail can cause life threatening third-degree burns. Should the victim absorb enough of the chemical mix through the skin, death could occur.

Fentanyl – another danger – is a drug 80 times stronger than heroin, and is sometimes being used in clandestine labs. There may be residue on the outside of the bottle. This drug is absorbed through the skin, and very small amounts are producing very dangerous outcomes. For more information on what to look for, what to report to law enforcement, roadside clean-up precautions, staying safe, etc., call Marilyn Rogers, Medical Examiner, at 608-339-4524, and leave a message. She will get back to you.
